

Sew Be It Girl's new label features teen clothing collections designed by select teen designers of Sew Be It Girl (www.sewbeitstudio.com)-Toronto's first sewing studio dedicated to tween and teen fashionistas. Advancing the design careers of up-and-coming Canadian fashion prodigies through one-on-one mentorship, entrepreneurial training and fashion design workshops, 15-year-old Emma Lewis is the first to benefit from and contribute to Sew Be It Girl's label. Debuting 5 key pieces for the first collection this winter, Emma offers a fierce and feminine flare to this youthful line.

Sew be it Girl, 647.347.6353

carrie dress

---

self: black, flower: pink available in sizes 1, 2, 3

lil' j skirt

---

self: black, detail: tulle
available in sizes 1, 2, 3

tulip dress

---

self: black and charcoal
available in sizes 1, 2, 3

the twisted sister top

---

self: black, detail: kelly green

available in sizes 1, 2, 3

love today dress

---

self: black, heart: red
available in sizes 1, 2, 3

About Emma Lewis:

Emma Lewis began sewing at the age of 10, shaping her fashion career over several classes and workshops at Sew Be It Studio. Launching her own collection as part of the Sew Be It Girl Label at 15 years of age, Emma is currently balancing her academic life at The Bishop Strachan School while continuing workshops at Sew Be It. An all-around artist, Emma also enjoys dancing, acting, visual arts and singing. Inspired by designs created by Jeremy Scott, Marc Jacobs and those worn by Sarah Jessica Parker, Emma has already developed what she describes as a fierce, feminine and edgy personal style that she hopes will inspire other teens her age. Emma's future aspirations are to attend Parsons School of Design in New York – as well as Paris for one summer.